Brockville-on-the-St. Lawrence

LOCATED on the banks of the mighty St. Lawrence, the international boundary line between Canada and the United States and contiguous to the famous Thousand Islands, Brockville is most charmingly situated. It is one of the chief centres of the Thousand Island resort region and is a beautiful city of about 10,000 people, being built on an elevation which ascends by successive terraces from the St. Lawrence. It is on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, and a branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway joins it to Ottawa. It has connection by ferry with Morristown, N.Y., a terminus of the New York Central Railroad. Brockville is much sought in the tourist season, having visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada. It is a substantial looking commercial centre with handsome business blocks and important industrial establishments. Main Street is a well-built thoroughfare and Court House Square is surrounded by some imposing business blocks. Among the finer buildings of the City of Brockville are the Court House, Post Office, Collegiate Institute, General Hospital, St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Armories, etc. The Asylum for the Insane at Brockville is also a very fine building. Brockville is rich also in historic association, being named after General Sir Isaac Brock, the hero of Queenston Heights. The steamers which ply on the St. Lawrence bring Brockville within easy reach of all the other famous resorts of the Thousand Island region and the excursioning and yachting upon the river make life at Brockville during the summer months a round of continuous enjoyment. Brockville has a prosperous boat club who contribute much to the social life of the city during the summer months.
